

Annual Report
July 2004- June 2005

Executive Summary

This past year has brought historic changes to the structure of Kentucky agriculture with the passage of a federal tobacco buyout. Nevertheless, Kentucky has a five year jump start over other tobacco states with its investments from the Agricultural Development Fund (ADF). It has only been four and half short years since the first projects were approved, but in that short time over $187 million has been invested in Kentucky Agriculture, $26.6 million this past year. We are truly the envy of tobacco producing states for no one else has undertaken such an effort to change its agricultural economy.

Reeling from a more than 50% loss of tobacco quota and the buyout of the federal tobacco program, Kentucky farmers now have opportunities to diversify that agricultural leaders never imagined possible 10 – 15 years ago when the question was asked, “What will we do when tobacco is no longer the mainstay on our farms?” No one at that time could have imagined the financial resources the ADF would provide to change the face of rural Kentucky.

In October 2004, the Agricultural Development Board began a planning process designed to give Board members an opportunity to evaluate how the goals established Kentucky’s Long-term Plan for Agriculture are being reached and to establish new objectives to continue meeting those goals, as well as developing policies to steer the future of the ADF. Strategies and programs to take agricultural diversification to the next level came from this planning process. Examples being the 2005 Agri-tourism and Farmer’s Market Competitive Awards programs.

At the same time, the tobacco companies’ legal action to not provide the 2004 Phase II payments threatened the future of many Kentucky producers who had planned on and budgeted for those payments. During the 2005 Legislative Session, Governor Fletcher and the Kentucky General Assembly committed $114 million, along with $10 million from the Burley Tobacco Cooperative, to make the 2004 Kentucky Phase II payment. Kentucky was the only state that stepped up to the challenge and provided this financial compensation to its producers. Kentucky was able to do so because of the long term vision of our leaders with the investment of 50% of the state’s Master Settlement Agreement funds to agriculture. Since then, Kentucky and the other 12 tobacco grower states have been successful in the North Carolina Supreme Court; it is expected the $114 million will be returned to Kentucky and the ADF, along with the balance being paid to our farmers.

We face unprecedented challenges and opportunities in the years to come. Now with the tobacco buyout, we know what to expect from the federal government and can begin to plan for a new future in Kentucky agriculture. The function that the ADF has played in preparing our farmers for life without a tobacco program and the role that the ADF will play in the future is invaluable. We have only begun this journey; it will take strong leadership and the growth of entrepreneurship in rural Kentucky to perpetuate this agriculture diversification effort.

Agricultural Development Fund Investments

Kentucky's historic investment in agricultural diversification has created an unprecedented opportunity for Kentucky farmers to access funds for agricultural diversification and the expansion of farm based enterprises. To provide a guide for this investment, Kentucky's agricultural community came together and created a long-term plan. In January 2002, the Agricultural Development Board approved Kentucky's first long-term plan for agricultural development, Cultivating Rural Prosperity. This plan is the blueprint for Kentuckians in addressing issues associated with agricultural growth and diversification in the Commonwealth as we begin the difficult task of changing a industry that is dependent upon tobacco.

The Agricultural Development Board has focused on the six priorities in Cultivating Rural Prosperity, as they have continued their commitment to funding agricultural diversification throughout the state. The six priorities are listed below along with an investment that highlights progress the Board has made this past fiscal year in each area. For a complete listing of funded projects see Appendix C.

Priority #1

Marketing and Market Development

The Agricultural Development Board has worked extensively with producers and commodity groups toward the development of the marketing infrastructure for Kentucky agriculture. Investments in this area range from local farmers' markets to large-scale value-added processing, all of which are integral in creating a comprehensive local, regional and state marketing system for Kentucky farm products.

Allied Food Marketers West

Allied Food Marketers West, Inc. is utilizing state funds for the two-year development of a marketing and distribution model, which will provide Kentucky producers access to retail markets that small producers with niche products currently find it difficult to enter. Allied Food Marketers West is working with Kentucky producers to create a business incubator to assist farmers in the steps that they must go through to pursue their business ideas and create viable products with solid marketing programs.

The development of a marketing distribution network is a critical step for the developing businesses in Kentucky's agricultural community. In order to achieve diversification from tobacco production, developing businesses must find quicker, cost effective, and viable ways to achieve volume and scale.

Priority #2

Financing the Future:

Improving Access to Capital

The Agricultural Development Board recognizes that, while capital sources are generally available to producers, commercial lenders might be reluctant to enter into financing for products and businesses where there is limited financial history. To address this concern, the Board supported the reactivation of the Kentucky Agricultural Finance Corporation.

Competitive Awards Programs

The Agricultural Development Board developed two competitive awards programs for 2005 for the agri-tourism industry and farmers' markets. These programs provided access to state Agricultural Development funds for applicants whose projects met the competitive program requirements.

Agricultural Development Fund Investments

Priority #3

Financial Incentives for Environmental Stewardship

Developing environmental awareness in tandem with agricultural diversification is critical to the quality of Kentucky's rural communities. The Agricultural Development Fund continues to support statewide conservation efforts through direct budget appropriations for investments in conservation programs, farmland preservation, and rural waterline extension. The Agricultural Development Board has also supported environmental stewardship through the approval of local programs designed to improve farm management techniques for long-term sustainability.

Timber Production Utilization & Marketing Model Program

The Timber Production, Utilization, & Marketing model program was designed to impact a high number of producers affected by the loss of income from tobacco who also have a vast renewable resource on their farms. The goal of this program are to develop new revenue sources for farmers through growing and utilizing existing/new natural resources and to promote timber production and processing on areas of farms not suitable for crop or livestock production. The program provides 50% cost-share funds, up to $5,000, for the purchase of seeds and seedlings, fencing, weed control and irrigation, processing and transportation equipment.

Priority #4

Farm Family Education and Computer Literacy

Farm families are the cornerstones of Kentucky's agricultural community. The Agricultural Development Board is committed to strengthening and improving the accessibility of education and training programs tailored specifically for the needs of farm families. Much of the funding in this area falls under the Kentucky Center for Agricultural Development and Entrepreneurship program, which is discussed in detail in the KCADE report.

Kentucky Community & Technical College System (KTSTC)

KTSTC is utilizing state funds to offer a course to teach farmers how to effectively use computer technology to keep financial records, keep inventory and livestock records, do research and marketing on the internet, communicate through e-mail, and other general computer functions.

The course will be available to tobacco producers for a on-time fee of $25 in the three areas of the state with the most tobacco dependent counties: Northeast - Robertson, Bracken, Lewis, Menifee, Mason, Harrison, and Nicholas; North Central - Trimble, Owen, Grant, Henry, and Pendleton; South Central - Barren, Metcalfe, Green, Hart, Adair, Russell, and Taylor.

Agricultural Development Fund Investments

Priority #5

Supporting Local Leadership

County Agricultural Development Councils and County Extension Agents are the catalyst for change that is occurring in Kentucky's agricultural community. Agricultural Development Funds, through direct budget appropriations, have been used to support this leadership by providing administrative funds for county councils and merit-based bonuses for extension personnel. The Agricultural Development Board recognizes the need to continue supporting the leadership efforts of the county agricultural development councils and the Cooperative Extension Service network, while developing programs to encourage local leadership in rural communities.

Russell Neighborhood Development Authority, Inc.

The Russell Neighborhood Development Authority, Inc received county funds from Jefferson, Spencer, and Bullitt counties, as well as $12,500 in state funds from the 2005

Farmers' Market Competitive Grant Program. The grant funds were used to conduct a feasibility study on the viability of a regional marketing facility that would initially serve retail and institutional markets in Bullitt, Spencer, and Jefferson counties. The focus of the study is the ability of farmers and specialty food producers in the Commonwealth to provide fresh, healthy, and affordable products that appeal to the diverse populations of Bullitt, Spencer, and Jefferson counties.

Priority #6

Research and Development

The Agricultural Development Board recognizes the need to maintain strong commitments to applied research in existing farm product areas, as well as the importance of exploring the viability of high value markets in non-traditional areas.

Little Kentucky Smokehouse

Little Kentucky Smokehouse, LLC (LKS) received $1,000,000 as a forgivable loan to expand their meat processing plant, with an emphasis on pork products, which will have an annual capacity of fourteen million pounds. This expansion project will allow LKS to develop a source-verified "Kentucky Fresh" pork product line, utilizing Kentucky raised hogs.

Entrepreneurship Program

The mission of the Kentucky Center for Agricultural Development and Entrepreneurship (KCADE) is to advance statewide efforts to diversify the basis of Kentucky's agricultural economy by providing or coordinating:

- ✦ Technical assistance;
- ✦ Resource information;
- ✦ Cost-share grants; and,
- ✦ Capacity-building education and hands-on training.

Grant Program

Since its establishment, KCADE has supported market/feasibility studies, entrepreneurship development, technical assistance/education, and product research. Of the original $4 million set aside for this program, $637,543 remains for agriculture entrepreneurial endeavors. (See Appendix C For awards this fiscal year)

Technical Assistance & Education

Publications

As part of its outreach efforts, KCADE continues to publish two electronic newsletters for Kentucky's agriculture community.

Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund Update (KADFU) was developed to assist in the administration of County Agricultural Development Councils and provide frequent updates on program and policies. [Monthly, 200+ recipients]

KCADE Grant Bulletin was developed in an effort to leverage Agricultural Development Funds and inform producers of funding opportunities available from other organizations. [Quarterly, 560 recipients]

Web Pages

The KCADE Web Pages are dynamic and provide easy access to resources and information of use to Kentucky's farm families and agribusinesses. Information covered in these pages includes educational events, other funding opportunities, and resources.

A Look to the Future

During the fiscal year, Board's Marketing & Entrepreneurship Committee and staff met to review where KCADE has been and discuss where it needs to go.

The Committee noted progress had been made in the following mission statement areas: technical assistance, resource information, and cost-share grants.

The Committee also noted that the following entities, funded through either Agricultural Development Funds or KCADE Funds, helped provide technical assistance in specific areas.

- » Allied Food Marketers West, Inc. provides a significant step in providing technical assistance and business development to entities working to enter the retail market.
- » The Kentucky Entrepreneurial Coaches Institute is helping to create the entrepreneurial environment and encourage community leaders to build the entrepreneurial capacity in Kentucky's northeastern counties.
- » The Kentucky Center for Cooperative Development provides assistance to cooperatives and organizations in the areas of cooperative development, education, and technical assistance.

The Committee recommended that KCADE continue to build on the education component, which is key to entrepreneurship development, as well as dedicating a staff member to coordinating educational information and programs. The Committee also recommended that KCADE focus on creating an environment for entrepreneurship in rural Kentucky.
